Re: Unrestricted Research Gift Letter

Dear Ms. Tommasel,

From time to time, Facebook makes unrestricted research gifts with whom we'd like to foster collaboration over time. Accordingly, to support the winners to the Content Policy Research on Social Media Platforms call for proposals (phase 2), we are providing Universidad Nacional del Centro de la Provincia de Buenos Aires (ISISTAN – CONICET) with an unrestricted research gift in the amount of $58,800 USD (the "Gift").

It is our expectation that you will use the Gift to support your research "Hate speech is in the eye of the beholder Exploring bias on hate perception". Notwithstanding anything contrary contained in this letter, Facebook will not have any influence in the independent conduct of any studies or research, or in the dissemination of your findings.

Universidad Nacional del Centro de la Provincia de Buenos Aires (ISISTAN – CONICET) shall use this Gift in support of these efforts and in accordance with applicable laws. The Gift shall not be used in any way, directly or indirectly, to facilitate any act that would constitute bribery or an illegal kickback, an illegal campaign contribution, or otherwise violate any applicable anti-corruption or political activities law.

Acceptance of this Gift confirms that the Gift, the School's relationship with Facebook, and how the School was selected for this Gift has been disclosed. The School should not accept this Gift if it would interfere with his/her official duties and must not perform any official action to improperly benefit Facebook.

This Gift should only be accepted if it complies with applicable regulations, policies, and rules of the School; and applicable laws, regulations, rules, judgments, and orders of any court or governmental authority; and does not conflict with any other obligation you or the School may have to any other party. Please promptly inform Facebook of any circumstances that would make acceptance, retention, or use of the Gift inappropriate.

While we hope the School acknowledges Facebook's Gift on relevant websites and publications, the School may not use our logos or trademarks without prior written approval. All requests for use of the Facebook name or trademark must be submitted via the online form available at www.facebookbrand.com/requests.

Sincerely,
